

Missouri Farmers Union will host its annual meeting Saturday in Calrence

Friday

Posted Nov 4, 2016 at 12:45 PM

Area people in agricultural should mark their calendars for the Missouri Farmers Union annual meeting on Nov. 5 in Clarence, Mo., at the Hometown Restaurant. Admission and lunch are free.

Area people in agricultural should mark their calendars for the Missouri Farmers Union annual meeting on Nov. 5 in Clarence, Mo., at the Hometown Restaurant. Admission and lunch are free.

MFU will have reports from Missouri Healthcare for All, a representative from the Missouri State Highway Patrol Rural Crime Taskforce, and a local MODoT spokesman will talk about Missouri roads and bridges. Hear what NFU is doing about stressed profits of beef producers and TPP and other national issues.

Get the latest on Farmers Union Insurance in Missouri from NFU's own Chris Kircher.

Backed by one of the biggest insurers in the world, QBE Insurance, farm casualty, liability, auto and crop insurance are available now in some areas with more agents on the way.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. with rolls and coffee. Lunch is at noon.

